After narrowly losing to Republican Juan Ciscomani in last year's midterm elections, Engel looks to finish the job in 2024

TUCSON, AZ – Former State Senator Kirsten Engel is running for the U.S. House of Representatives in Arizona's Sixth Congressional District.

"Each and every day, I talk to Arizonans who are struggling to get by. Let's face it, for so many of us, the American Dream keeps falling further and further out of reach.

And what are Juan Ciscomani and the Republican Congress doing? Rolling back women's rights, ignoring climate change, and putting big corporations ahead of working families and small businesses.

I won't stand by and let Juan Ciscomani take us backwards."

Arizona's Sixth Congressional district has been placed on the "Districts in Play" list by the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, and is widely expected to be a key battleground in Democratic plans to retake the House in 2024.

This was one of the closest elections in the country in 2022. Even while being outspent by more than 6:1, Kirsten Engel proved that she is the candidate who can win this tough swing seat.

"I'll work with anyone to level the playing field for Arizona families and protect our rights. Together, we came damn close last time and I'm here to finish the job."
